Aliens Have Been Found Walking This Earth!

By Robert L. Moak

As one might imagine, these aliens are very different than most humans. These aliens do not like the same things as humans. However, they look like humans thus, you may not be able to identify them as aliens. It may require some time for them to be recognized as they first seem like humans that you know.

When you first get to know them, they may seem like everybody else. As you get to know them better, they do not want to participate in regular activities that everybody is doing! They may not demand their rights openly, and they will not want to do stuff, just because everybody else is doing it. They will likely not want to take part in "bulling" others, as well, because they hold themselves to a higher standard than most humans.

The strangest thing about these aliens is that they were once part of mankind, but they began to think differently, and they were changed forever. No longer would they continue to live on this earth, as they once did. These aliens found their way to a new lifestyle, and they will eventually have to leave this earth, and go back to where they originally came from.

This planet where they once lived is being re-made and the completion date of it is unknown. No member of mankind knows when the date of their return will occur. Oddly enough these aliens do not know the date for their return either! They just know that when their time comes to leave this earth, they believe that someone who knows this date will come back to this earth to lead them to a holding area, where they can stay, until the Day arrives, and the new world is ready for them to live in!

They believe this new planet will be a wonderful place, because they have been given a book that supplies a detailed story about how beautiful the original garden spot was! Unfortunately, many of these aliens have lost interest in this story, because so much time has passed, and some wonder, if it is still a true story. Some of them have now been convinced that they are really part of this world, and there is no new and wonderful planet being recreated for their return!

METAMORPHOSIS and MIGRATION

How Does Evolution Explain?

By Terry Ivers

Secular science for more than 200 years has taught that life is only possible through evolution, meaning that everything is random and happens by chance. Every day the modern scientific community discovers another fact that makes this belief in naturalistic processes through materialistic resources even harder to explain. Even though we can try to understand the complex systems that cause life, naturalism cannot explain how they occur without information and design. Two processes that naturalistic science has a real problem explaining are, metamorphosis and migration because there is no evolutionary process that can explain irreducible complexity, which allows dependent complex systems to function independent of one another. One of God's greatest riddles for the evolutionist is the Monarch Butterfly.

The Monarch Butterfly is king of all butterflies, it lives longer than any other butterfly, it is the most widely recognized butterfly in North America, it migrates farther and is more widely distributed over the earth than any other type of butterfly. It also is the only butterfly that has a migration pattern that can take it over open waters beyond the sight of land, to a pre-determined destination that it has never been to before. Lastly, the Monarch Caterpillar that emerges from the egg onto the milkweed will grow faster and larger in proportion to its starting weight than any other creature in the animal kingdom. Within the first 10 to 15 days it will outgrow and shed its skin 4 times, growing to more than 3000 times its birth weight.

Monarch Metamorphosis

The Monarch starts out its life from a tiny egg stuck to a Milkweed leaf, the egg no bigger than the head of a pin. Once out of the egg the larvae (caterpillar) will turn and eat the shell of the egg that it just came out of to supply the nutrients that it needs. Monarchs will start eating the Milkweed leaves, but the Milkweed is poisonous to the Monarch so it will eat at the inside of the leaf first to build up its immunity to the toxin, because most of the poison is toward the outside of the leaf. Once the Milkweed realizes that its leaves are being eaten it will direct the poison to the middle but by now the caterpillar has built up its immunity so it moves toward the outside of the leaf. Monarchs will carry this poison in their system the rest of their lives, along with their bright colors, to help defend the Monarch from predators.

Monarch Caterpillar Becoming a Chrysalis

<http://www.monarch-butterfly.com/>

The Monarch caterpillar's only purpose at this time is to eat and grow and for the next 10 days or so eating until it reaches the point that it knows it has grown enough and stored up all that it needs for the next stage of its life cycle. It will then attach itself upside down in a "J" shape on the underside of a branch where it will then start splitting its skin towards the back of its head and a protective covering will start to enclose it from the bottom up. The caterpillar will be completely enclosed by this green covering called a chrysalis within a short period of time. Inside the chrysalis the caterpillar will turn into a pupa where a metamorphosis will take place over the next 10 to 15 days. While in the pupa stage it will completely break itself down to a liquid substance before re-forming into a butterfly.

ABIOTENESIS: BIOLOGICAL EVOLUTION'S LINCHPIN

By Walter I. Sivertsen
12/02/2016

www.midwestcreationfellowship.org

Pasteur and his predecessors dealt with the idea of the spontaneous generation of whole, live organisms in an oxidizing atmosphere. When Pasteur established the Law of Biogenesis under those conditions, the evolutionists switched to the spontaneous generation of the molecules necessary for life. However, the chemistry required a reducing atmosphere, and the rhetoric required new language. Thus, the terms "chemical evolution" and "abiogenesis" were created.

But, why is there need to preserve some sort of spontaneous generation? Simply put, "...we can't allow a Devine foot in the door." The reason is that the whole logical structure of the worldview of materialism comes crashing down if spontaneous generation is false and a Creator is necessary for life to exist.

Therefore for at least the past six decades scientists have been using their intelligence and expertise to design experiments, at great cost of time and money, for the purpose of showing that neither intelligence nor design are necessary to create life. So far the results indicate that human bio-engineering and intelligence are not capable of doing what natural processes supposedly did by chance. The on-going failures do not bode well for confirming spontaneous generation, since they strongly suggest that an intelligence and a bio engineering superior to that of humans are really required to create life.

Furthermore, if an origin-of-life experiment should one day be successful, it would falsify the notion that the results do NOT require intelligence and design. After all is said and done, both are being employed every time the notion is tested and they would account for the success. Thus, this is a self-refuting quest because both outcomes (success & failure) argue against the existence of spontaneous generation. This is not robust, logical, good science as claimed by evolutionists. It's just an illogical exercise in futility.

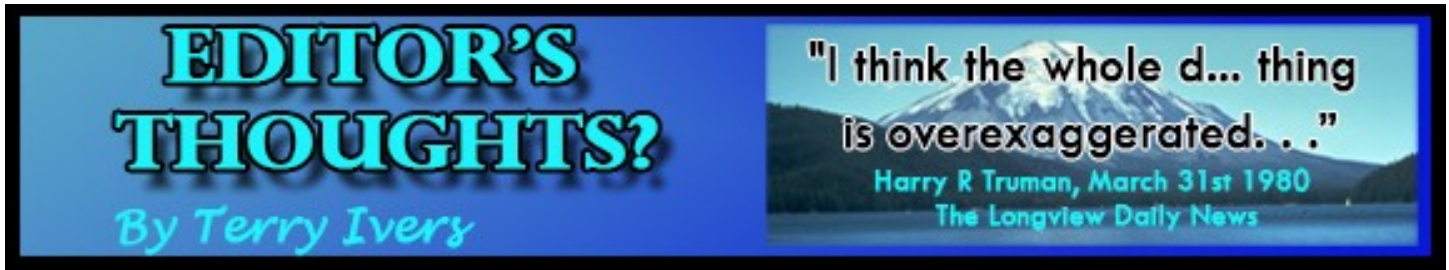

Conclusion: The notion of spontaneous generation (A.K.A. abiogenesis or chemical evolution) is false, and the worldview of naturalism, that requires this foundational idea to be true, is also false.

At the writing of this commentary, the weather at my home in central Kentucky is very spring like, although we are still a few weeks from the official date of Spring, so far we have experienced a very mild winter, I pray that you can say the same. Just like the weather, the climate of our country towards the acceptance of Biblical Creation and the young age of the earth is also heating up. In the Spring 2017 edition of the World By Design Newsletter we want to provide more information that you can use to talk with your friends and family about why you believe that the earth is only slightly older than 6000 years. It is our mission at CRSEF to provide correct and useful information to allow our readers to engage those in their spheres of influence in a polite and logical discussion about the age and origins of our world.

The "Is Genesis History" movie has been screened three times at theaters, and is due for DVD release in early April 2017. Due to the popularity of the movie there will be ample opportunities to share with people the ideas of Young Earth Creation, therefore it is important that we not only know what our beliefs are but also that we are equipped for the conversations that we find ourselves involved in. As is often the case in Christianity most of the backlash for the fore-mentioned movie is coming from groups that associate themselves with Christ, this should come as no surprise, for the warnings of false prophets in the New Testament are numerous. It is not for me to judge, but only to seek God's Word and His Wisdom so that when the final judgment comes I have gotten it right.

It is important to remember that from the birth of Christ till the Eighteenth Century, the questions of the age of the earth and the origins of man were firmly rooted in the Holy Scriptures, but because of men like Hutton and Lyell geologic ideas started to change. Catastrophism began to be replaced by deep time in which layers were laid down slowly and natural erosion was the source of the rock layers that we observe today. Although the scientific community has defended this geologic view for over two hundred years those ideas were dramatically challenged at 8:32 a. m. March 18th 1980, a Richter magnitude 5.1 earthquake at the Mt. St. Helens volcano in the state of Washington changed the uniformitarian view of geology forever. Within seconds of the earthquake the over-steepened north slope of the mountain erupted into what became the largest landside recorded by man. The avalanche debris consisting of rock and ice totaling about 3.3 billion cubic yards, was launched off the summit at speeds exceeding 150 miles per hour. This May 18th will be the 37th anniversary of the Mt. St. Helens Eruption, and during this time geologists have been able to observe and measure all that has went on since the eruption, making it very hard to maintain the deep time, uniformitarian views of geology. God has a way of revealing His truths in time, if we just open our hearts and minds to the scriptures science always tries to catch up with God's Word.

We welcome your questions and concerns and ask that you send us information and articles that you would want us to share. Thank you for your interest and involvement in CRSEF and we look forward to hearing from you, we may be contacted at editor\_wbdnewsletter@twc.com or rlmoak@fuse.net.

God Bless

Well, you may have guessed it by now, these aliens are not little green men who came to this planet from outer space! They are actually just members of mankind, who have accepted Jesus Christ, as their Lord and Savior. Such people are different than all the other members of mankind, as they have been changed in spirit, by taking on the Spirit of Jesus into their lives. Such humans are no longer satisfied with just living on this earth. They now seek a better life, both now and forever more. When they die, and leave this old world they know they will be led by Jesus Christ into the next portion of their eternal life in a new world that is being prepared by God/Jesus!

We Were Aliens Until Jesus' Work Was Completed!

He came and preached peace to you who were far away and peace to those who were near. For through him we both have access to the Father by one Spirit. Consequently, you are no longer foreigners and aliens, but fellow-citizens with God's people and members of God's household, built on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, with Christ Jesus himself as the chief cornerstone. (Ephesians 2:17-19)

People who believe in evolution are searching the skies in the hope of finding an alien who may have brought life to the earth, because they know life could not have started on this earth. Giving themselves billions of years does not help, because life cannot start from non-life. The law of biogenesis prohibits life to come from chemical non-life. Scientifically evolution is impossible to have occurred on this earth, so they must hope there are conditions on some distant planet where science there would allow creation of life from non-life!

Did you know that you are an alien in God's sight? Until we take Jesus into our life we remain as a "foreigners and aliens." However, God's plan for those who love Him included a plan that Jesus would come into this wicked world and save all those who know and love God from their sins, by having Jesus pay the price by dying on that cross. Then when Jesus was leaving this earth, temporarily, He left behind the Holy Spirit to indwell all of those who claim this price paid on that old rugged cross! All that is required is for you to claim the prize Jesus captured by dying on that cross. If that wasn't good enough Jesus also gives you the Holy Spirit to aid you in understanding this great plan, and to also assist you when you pray!

Do you have "Christ Jesus himself as the chief cornerstone" in your life? If you have then you should be experiencing the feeling of being controlled by the Holy Spirit, pushing you to do good for other people. Paul wrote about such feelings in the book of Romans. But now that you have been set free from sin and have become slaves to God, the benefit you reap leads to holiness, and the result is eternal life. For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord. (Romans 6:22-23) Are you in slavery to God or instead to the temptations offered by this world?

Many people do not believe in these basic tenants of faith, and have instead turned their lives toward the earthly pleasures offered by Satan, and supported by a god other than the true and only God, as defined in the Bible. Are we now in the last days, and approaching the time of the Tribulation? But mark this: There will be terrible times in the last days. People will be lovers of themselves, lovers of money, boastful, proud, abusive, disobedient to their parents, ungrateful, unholy, without love, unforgiving, slanderous, without self-control, brutal, not lovers of the good, treacherous, rash, conceited, lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God—having a form of godliness but denying its power. Have nothing to do with them. (2 Timothy 3:1-5)

Another rampage has been experienced in the USA, where again some fool has decided he should go on some campus, and shoot people for some reason that apparently seemed logical to him. Obviously, this person had no love for anyone, and believed he was the judge who should bring their judgment on this earth by performing these executions. Did this person believe they were a god, who could discern what the punishment should be for all the people they shot? In one such incident the shooter asked a question about religious affiliation, before he shot people. We know that he shot people in the head who professed to be a Christian, and he shot others in the legs.

One of the things that Jesus tried to teach all those who would choose to follow Him was a form of humility that Paul wrote to the Philippians and us. Do nothing out of selfish ambition or vain conceit, but in humility consider others better than yourselves. (Philippians 2:3) A person who decides to kill others, for no good reason, must believe they have a good reason, and could not profess any form of humility, as they must believe their execution of people puts them in a godlike status. They could never believe they should treat other people as being in any way better than them, "in humility consider others better than yourselves." They represent themselves as a perfect executioner, and may believe they are doing a service to humanity in some way. They would be culling out the unacceptable members of mankind, so to speak.

In the USA, today more people believe that Christians are dangerous people who take away their ability to be free. Unfortunately, since all Christians are also humans, there is likely some truth to such accusations. It is difficult to come off as humble when we claim to be better than others, and that we are the only people who will be saved. And of course, this is a true statement. Jesus tried to help us understand that we need humility to be obvious in our lives. Matthew wrote how Jesus responded when He was asked. "Teacher, which is the greatest commandment in the Law?" (Matthew 22:36). Jesus replied: "Love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind.' This is the first and greatest commandment. And the second is like it: 'Love your neighbor as yourself.'" All the Law and the Prophets hang on these two commandments." (Matthew 22:37-40)

The element that is missing in people's lives is this true ability to love one another. This commentary will not supply any answer to this problem of people who hate each other, as that is too broad of a topic to easily answer. However, as Christians we must be working on becoming more Christ-like, and that holds hope, only if it causes us to consider others better than us, and to love them in spite of their different belief systems.

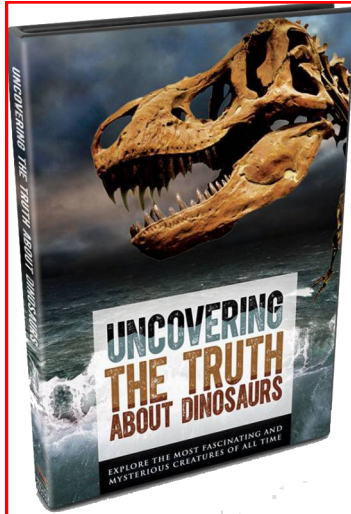

Guns do kill, when the gun is being held by a person who hates other human beings. We need to consider how to get a gun out of their hands, but more importantly we need to pray for Jesus to remove the hate from their heart, then it would not matter that they possess a weapon! In this way, love is made complete among us so that we will have confidence on the day of judgment, because in this world we are like him. (1John 4:17)

Do You Ever Feel Like An Alien?

Dear friends, I urge you, as aliens and strangers in the world, to abstain from sinful desires, which war against your soul. Live such good lives among the pagans that, though they accuse you of doing wrong, they may see your good deeds and glorify God on the day he visits us. (1 Peter 2:11-12)

Would anyone see your good deeds, and then, they would glorify God? Do you ever really feel like an alien, because your views of this world are so different than those of an acquaintance or a friend who is not a professing Christian? Are you apt to change your view to compare favorably to their view, just to avoid a confrontation or argument?

Ed Stortz of CRSEF will present, "The Biblical Adam in the 21st Century: An Introduction!"

It is in the context of the current controversy between revealed and discernible truths of Scripture verses a predominate materialistic belief system of many philosophers and naturalistic scientists, that this essay is offered. Centering on the origin of man as presented in Scripture and supported by relevant studies in various fields of learning, this paper is submitted as a legitimate introduction to and investigation of "Adam; My progenitor; My protagonist; My problem" which themes will be developed in subsequent chapters.

For the people of this world are more shrewd in dealing with their own kind than are the people of the light. (Luke 16:8)

During this time the chrysalis will go through many color changes, and when the butterfly is ready it will rip through a seam at the bottom of the chrysalis. The Monarch's wings will be small and wet when he emerges from the chrysalis, the butterfly will hang off the chrysalis and pump fluid into its wings and let them dry for a couple hours before being able to fly. Now the Monarch Butterfly is ready to load up on nectar so that this new generation may begin their leg of the journey.

Monarch Emerging from a Chrysalis

Monarch Migration Begins

The Monarch population in North America is divided by the Rocky Mountains, with the Eastern Monarch colonies remaining east of the Rockies and the Western colonies remaining west of the Rockies. The western colonies winter in the eucalyptus trees in and around Pacific Grove, California. The winter home for most of the eastern colonies is The Monarch Butterfly Biosphere Reserve, which covers an area of over 560 square kilometers (350 square miles), located in the Trans-Mexican Volcanic Belt pine-oak forests ecoregion on the border of Michoacán State and the State of Mexico, 100 km (62 miles), northwest of Mexico City. Millions of Monarch's start arriving here in late October and November and will inhabit only a fraction of the 56,000 hectares of the reserve. Since cold weather can be lethal for the butterflies, they return back to these same trees, year after year, even though they have never been here before. They will spend the cool winter days huddled together in the trees to get the heat from the bark of the trees to remain warm. During the winter months there will be thousands per branch bending the branches toward the ground.

<https://news.mongabay.com/2011/11/monarch-butterflies-decline-at-wintering-grounds-in-mexico-texas-drought-adds-to-stress-to-migration/>

Migration Northward

In February when the air starts warming up the butterflies become more active, they begin to mate and move to other mountain locations. Around the second week of March they begin their migration cycle once again traveling in colonies as large as 20 million, they will make it as far as Texas or one of the other southern states, where they will mate and once again lay eggs and start the life cycle again. The females will lay up to 400 eggs each, and shortly after the "Methuselah" (forth) generation will die. Here is where the new generation of Monarchs will load up on nectar and continue on north toward Canada and the extreme north border of the United States, it will take two more generations to make this leg of the migration. The normal Monarch life span is about 3 to 4 weeks, with the exception of the "Methuselah" generation that will live 9 months or more. Monarch's will travel 80 to 120 nautical miles per day depending on weather conditions, they achieve this by catching warm air currents which allow them to travel with little use of their wings except when the draft slows or they need to change course.

Monarchs have many enemies and there is peril all along the trip, thunderstorms and rain as well as other animals will challenge the migrating butterflies. Monarchs travel by day and are able to navigate even on cloudy days as long as there is an occasional view of the sun. There are groups that track the migrations by tagging the butterflies as they travel and then reporting the findings when the tags are spotted in another location. Monarch Watch is a non-profit, educational, conservation, and research program based at the University of Kansas, that can provide all the information needed to participate in the tagging and tracking programs.

In early fall, when the days start to shorten and the nights get cooler, this is when the fourth (“Methuselah”) generation will start to emerge from their chrysalis and prepare for their long journey home. This generation of Monarchs are smaller than the previous generations, they will start to store up fuel in their abdomens for the up to 3000 mile journey back to the overwintering home in Mexico. The Monarchs will stop along the way to store up more nectar as they travel, they will continue to add weight, but they will be required to store enough fuel in their systems for the return trip to Texas in the spring. The butterflies will fly southward using navigation that is thought to be genetically inherited, using the sun position and the time of day as references. Scientists are still not exactly sure how this process works, but science does know that their navigation works very good, because even if they are redirected during the journey they will be able to right their course using the most direct route to arrive back to their original flight path. Some Monarchs that come down the east coast migrate out over Atlantic ocean and are able to locate and stop at tiny islands, such as The Bahamas and Cuba, to refuel on their way back south.

<http://monarchjointventure.org/monarch-biology/monarch-migration/>

All of the Monarchs will fly south toward the most southern tip of Texas where they will cross the Rio Grande into Mexico. There will be millions of butterflies in this narrow corridor down the east side of the Sierra Madre Oriental Mountain Range, headed for one of the fourteen sanctuaries that are in the Biosphere Reserve. The Monarchs not only have never made this journey before but most of them will return to the same tree that their earlier generations left from. They start arriving in mid November, the residents of the villages celebrate the return of the monarchs with a weeklong celebration. Ancient traditions in these villages say that the butterflies are their ancestors spirits returning back to their homes to pay tribute each year. This tradition has been going on for centuries. Due to the logging industry being stopped when the Biosphere Reserve was created, many of the villagers lost their jobs, but since the 1970's when scientists finally discovered that the Monarchs returned here every year, most of the villagers now support their families through the tourism that is brought in by the Monarchs.

The Monarch populations have been declining due to loss of habitat, groups like Monarch Watch and others offer different programs for replanting milkweed, setting up Monarch friendly spaces in your garden, parks and schools. In the United States the problems of urbanization has eliminated growing areas (wild and planted) for milkweed. Milkweed is the only plant on which Monarchs will lay their eggs, so it is imperative for these areas to be available. Large scale spraying of pesticides used for farming, lawn care and other preventative measures are also a real threat to milkweed. The overwintering sites of the Monarchs are also in danger due to ever increasing populations moving closer to the protected sanctuaries and illegal logging is also an ongoing problem.

If you take this approach, then of course, you will not feel like an alien! If you do this, and if we are honest we all do it sometimes, do you ever feel guilty of failing Our Lord? Did Jesus die for your sins? Do you believe He did?

And this is the testimony: God has given us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. He who has the Son has life; he who does not have the Son of God does not have life. I write these things to you who believe in the name of the Son of God so that you may know that you have eternal life. (1 John 5:11-13) I believe my immortal soul was saved, because I accepted Jesus' death on that cross now over 2,000 years ago! This does not guarantee that I will be a good person, but it puts me on the narrow path, which allows even me to become more Christ-like. Are YOU on that path? Do you know for sure? This is the most important thing for you to gain in this lifetime!

This is what the LORD says: "Let not the wise man boast of his wisdom or the strong man boast of his strength or the rich man boast of his riches, but let him who boasts boast about this: that he understands and knows me, that I am the LORD, who exercises kindness, justice and righteousness on earth, for in these I delight," declares the LORD. (Jeremiah 9:23-24) Is getting to know God on your bucket list? Boasting about earthly possessions or earthly accomplishments will not guarantee happiness, only by taking time to know the Lord will allow you to have a peace based on the knowledge that your immortal soul has been saved. In Old Testament times God was the Savior, and it can be argued people groups were selected by God for salvation.

Now in New Testament times we have a Savior, and each person has a direct connection to Jesus, if they elect to make that connection. And this is the only way to be saved and to see Jesus in heaven! It is the only way; and do you know the way to heaven? Thomas who was one of the disciples said he did not know the way to heaven. Thomas said to him, "Lord, we don't know where you are going, so how can we know the way?" Jesus answered, "I am the way and the truth and the life. No-one comes to the Father except through me. (John 14:5-6) Please believe it, Jesus is the only way by which you can go to heaven, when you die to this life.

Jesus told stories about people being given currency of some type by a ruler or rich person, and then, that rich person would go away for a while, and when he returned, he would expect some gain on the currency he left with the selected person. For everyone who has will be given more, and he will have an abundance. Whoever does not have, even what he has will be taken from him. (Matthew 25:29) In such parables when the rich person returned, he would take away the currency from the one who did nothing with it except to hold on to it. Being ready for Christ's return involves more than playing it safe and doing little or nothing. It demands the kind of service that produces results. I believe these comments are not meant to be pointed to any type of gain in earthly possessions, but they are meant to be gains or losses of spiritual knowledge. The more time you devote to trying to gain heavenly wealth the more you will be given. Adversely if you have gained some spiritual knowledge, but you do not continue to work on it, what you already had will be lost, or it will be taken from you, and given to someone who has continued to work on their heavenly wealth! What do you think?

Have you ever said something like, "What can one person do anyway?" You would like to help, but really getting something done is too daunting of a task, let someone else do it! Go up and down the streets of Jerusalem, look around and consider, search through her squares. If you can find but one person who deals honestly and seeks the truth, I will forgive this city. Although they say, 'As surely as the LORD lives,' still they are swearing falsely." (Jeremiah 5:1-2) In this scenario it makes clear an answer to a question most have asked before, maybe even have asked many times, "What can one person do?"

Be careful that what you may swear to or about is really true, and a trustworthy statement! We all hide behind such statements to just bypass an opportunity to serve. It allows us a copout to allow us to feel good about not helping, because "what can just one person do?" In this day of social media, we can see evidence of how just one person can become the latest "going viral" topic. In these verses from Jeremiah God is promising to stop the assault on Jerusalem "If you can find but one person who deals honestly and seeks the truth, I will forgive this city." Here God shows the power of just one person who believes in Him. As you can see here God was already in the business of accepting individual faith, and giving it great power.

Professing Christians should often feel like an alien, because we see worldly situations differently than non-believers! Then we take action to try to right the wrong, or just to help another member of mankind. Are you ever a Good Samaritan, or do you adjust your route just off the narrow path, and avoid spending your valuable time with trivial stuff? Who is your neighbor? So, in everything, do to others what you would have them do to you, for this sums up the Law and the Prophets. "Enter through the narrow gate. For wide is the gate and broad is the road that leads to destruction, and many enter through it. But small is the gate and narrow the road that leads to life, and only a few find it. (Matthew 7:12-14). Are you looking for the narrow gate?

Do you ever feel like an alien? If you do, thank Jesus for His perfect sacrifice!

Some estimates have Monarch populations falling almost 80% in the past decade. Still it is estimated that around a billion butterflies will overwinter in the Monarch Butterfly Biosphere Reserve in Mexico during an average year.

Conclusion

Job replies to Zophar: "But ask the beasts, and they will teach you; the birds of the heavens, and they will tell you;" (Job 12:7) (ESV). Surely the Monarch Butterfly can teach us many things about our God, beginning with a tiny caterpillar that cannot live in the cold and cannot reproduce till it metamorphosis's into a butterfly takes place so that it can fly to a warmer climate. God has created the beautiful Monarch which weighs less than 1 gram and has an average wingspan of about 4 inches to go through its amazing metamorphic life cycle just so it can fulfill its purpose of the pollination that is incredibly important to the balance that is designed into God's Creation. As a creationist I glory in the processes that God has put in the Monarch Butterfly, and I would ask my friend the evolutionist, during what stage of the Monarch's life would it be able to survive without all of the stages being present at the start. I would also ask how a new generation of butterfly is able navigate over 3000 miles back to the exact location that its great-great grandparents started from.

CRSEF

Creation Research
Science Education
Foundation

Since its beginning, CRSEF's goal has been to educate the public about creation science and to conduct scientific research that supports the truthfulness of the creation account in the Bible. Board members believe in the inerrancy of the Bible, which we believe teaches a young earth and a worldwide Flood in the days of Noah
